

FICKLE AUTHORS BERATED

Loyalty to Publishers a Lost Virtue, Says Schenck.

BOOK SALE BOOM PLANNED

American Association, in Convention Assembled, Gets After Writers.

On how are the morals of authors degenerating? Time was when they worked in concert with their publishers, stood by them to the last ditch. But do they do that now? Not if you can believe Vernon M. Schenck, of Springfield, Mass., vice-president of the American Booksellers' Association, who began his thirteenth annual convention at the Hotel Astor yesterday.

The writer who has established his reputation," declared Mr. Schenck, to his assembled associates, "has absolutely no loyalty to the publishers who garbled on his early productions. If he brings an inferior manuscript to his publisher, after one of his books has swept the country, and his publisher has the nerve to turn it down, he carries it forthwith to another publisher, who no doubt offers him fabulous royalties. And the innocent bookkeeper, who has no means of judging the production except by the reputation of the author and the publisher, foots the bill.

There can be no reform in book selling until publishers realize that he who steals another's author steals trash. The publisher should realize that his imprint is his best asset and should see to it that it must alone secure that imprint.

"Overproduction—A Menace to the Book Trade," was Mr. Schenck's topic. He asserted that the production of books had increased 112 per cent between 1900 and 1910, while the population was increasing at the rate of only 22 per cent. He expressed the conviction that the reading public scarcely increased at all during this period, owing to the increase in the number of yellow newspapers, cheap magazines, circulating libraries and automobiles.

William H. Arnold, of the H. B. Clafin Company, was the originator of a suggestion later referred to the executive committee for a report at Thursday's meeting. He urged the appointment of a permanent committee to combine with a body from the American Publishers' Association as a kind of "board of trade," to take care of the similar interests of the publishers and booksellers.

Alfred Harcourt, of Henry Holt & Co., spoke on "Books and Their Competitors" at the morning session. Mr. Harcourt thought that the establishment of book-guilds in good locations, showing no magazines, might do much to push their sale.

DANIELS INSPECTS YARDS

Secretary of Navy Will Go to Pacific in July.

[From The Tribune Bureau.]
Washington, May 13.—On his return to-day from an inspection of the navy yards and naval stations in the South, the Secretary of the Navy declared that he is planning to inspect every station in the United States this year, and possibly may visit Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Secretary Daniels expects to make an inspection at Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Portsmouth soon, to gather information for recommendation to Congress to promote economy and efficiency in the conduct of the navy yards. He asserted, however, that he has in mind no radical changes.

The Secretary will inspect the navy yards and naval stations on the Pacific Coast in July. He is keenly interested in the work on the Pacific Coast, and will probably spend two or three weeks there.

Mr. Daniels looked into the question of the abolishment of the navy yards at Pensacola and New Orleans, and received protests from commercial interests against the action of the last administration. He has under advisement the matter of reopening the yards abandoned by Secretary Meyer.

ORDERS ISSUED.—The following army and navy orders have been issued:

CINCINNATI TIED UP YET

Streetcar Employees Firm and Traffic Paralyzed.

Cincinnati, May 13.—After a day of fruitless conferences, in which Mayor Henry T. Hunt was the intermediary between the Cincinnati Traction Company and its striking employees, the deadlock was still on to-night and the streetcar system was absolutely paralyzed.

The traction company officials are willing to open negotiations, but declare they cannot recognize the recently organized union. The union leaders declare the recognition of the union must take precedence over their other demands.

Although no effort was made by the streetcar company to run its cars to-day, it was announced to-night by the Safety Director, Dennis Cash, that the company had notified him it would make a determined effort to-morrow to resume service, and called on him to give adequate police protection.

It is freely predicted that if the company tries to run any of its cars there will be serious trouble. Earlier in the strike attempts by the company to start its cars were quickly frustrated by mobs, which burned several of the cars and badly wrecked others.

Chief of Police Copelan has the entire police force on duty in two shifts of twelve hours each, with an emergency force of one hundred men, provided with automobiles, to be rushed to the scene of any trouble. He declares, however, that he will be unable to place policemen on any cars.

The striking employees met to-night and unanimously decided to uphold the leaders in their demand that the union be recognized before negotiations are opened with the traction company.

WEATHER BUREAU

MADE BASED ON OBSERVATIONS TAKEN AT 5 O'CLOCK LAST NIGHT.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

Official Record and Forecast.—Washington, May 13.—A pronounced low pressure area of triangular form covers the central west, with its base extending northward and southward through the eastern plateau region and its apex over the middle Mississippi Valley. On either side pressure is considerably higher, and showers and thunderstorms occurred generally throughout the northern portion of the low area and extended northward almost to the Canadian border. The northern disturbance of Monday has reached the lower St. Lawrence Valley, attended by light local showers, and local thunderstorms continued in the South.

It is decidedly cooler to the northward of the low area, with temperatures from 2 to 22 degrees below the seasonal average, and warmer to the southward, with temperature from 5 to 13 degrees above the seasonal average. The western low area will move eastward. The western low area will move eastward, attended by showers over the northern half of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, reaching the Atlantic coast Wednesday night or Thursday, and showers will probably continue Thursday in the lower Ohio Valley central valleys. In the lower Ohio Valley there will be showers Wednesday night or Thursday, with lower temperature Thursday, while in the south local thunder showers will continue in the central Rocky Mountain region. The southwest and the extreme West region, the weather will be generally fair, with lower temperatures in the forward and the New England coast will be moderate south, becoming variable; along the middle Atlantic coast, moderate, mostly south, along the south Atlantic coast, moderate south and southwest; along the east Gulf coast, moderate south; along the west Gulf coast, moderate to brisk southeast and south; on the lower lakes, moderate north and northeast, becoming brisk to the upper lakes, moderate over northern portion and moderate to brisk over southern portion.

Forecast for Special Localities.—For Eastern New York, cloudy to-day; showers to-morrow; moderate northward to north winds. For Southern New England, cloudy to-day; showers to-morrow; moderate northward to north winds.

For Northern New England, cloudy to-day and to-morrow; probably showers to-morrow; moderate southwest and west winds, shifting to northwest.

For the District of Columbia and Maryland, generally cloudy to-day; showers and cooler to-morrow; moderate variable winds.

For Virginia, fair in southern portion and cloudy in northern portion to-day; cloudy to-morrow; probably showers and cooler; moderate variable winds.

For Delaware, cloudy to-day; showers to-morrow; moderate variable winds.

For New Jersey, cloudy to-day; probably showers to-morrow; cooler in the interior; moderate variable winds.

SANE FOURTH MOVE BEGUN

Mayor Appoints Committee to Bar Noise and Injury.

Plans for this year's safe and sane Fourth of July celebration were started yesterday at the meeting of the citizens' committee appointed by Mayor Gagner. The committee was organized by the election of the following officers: Herman Ridder, chairman; Benjamin J. Greenhut, vice-chairman; Isaac N. Seligman, treasurer; Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, secretary.

Alderman Henry H. Curran, who attended the meeting as a member of the committee, served notice that as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, he would oppose the appropriation of special revenue bonds for the celebration. He said the revenue bond account had already been drawn on to extensively and it was time to call a halt.

He suggested that the committee call upon the Board of Estimate for the $50,000 that the city has appropriated for the celebration in past years, saying that they could transfer that amount from other accounts. It was left to the Finance Committee to make an appeal to the public for private subscriptions and then to call upon the city for whatever assistance seemed necessary.

It was reported that the committee had a balance of $2,769.84 from last year.
